CHICAGO, February 28 – pH Productions, a Chicago-based improv and comedy theater company, has declared the winner of the 2007 Battle of the pHarms! Droppin' $cience, pH's pHarm Team at Columbia College, has won a 5 week run at Stage Left Theatre with all expenses paid by pH Productions!

Droppin' $cience - The darlings of Chicago's collegiate improv community demonstrate their improv skills with their original form, pHun Town. This talented group of students from Columbia College is a pHarm Team, part of pH Productions' college program. Droppin' $cience won this Thursday night Spotlight Series run by overcoming Loyola and DePaul in the 2007 Battle of the pHarms.

Thursdays, March 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29 @ 11PM. Tickets are $8 ($5 for students with ID). Stage Left Theatre is located at 3408 N. Sheffield Avenue in Lakeview/Wrigleyville. Tickets and additional info are available at www.whatisph.com or call the pH Box Office at 773.732.5450.

The 2007 Battle of the pHarms featured pHarm Teams from Columbia College, DePaul University and Loyola University. Every team performed a fantastic show to a sold out theater, but it was Columbia's Droppin' $cience that sold the most tickets for their team. The honor of a 5 week run in pH's Thursday night Spotlight Series is theirs.

Columbia College's Droppin' $cience was founded by pH in early 2004 and has been going strong ever since. The Columbia team is sponsored by the College and even has its own Club Program. Droppin' $cience recently participated in the Georgetown Improv Festival in Washington D.C. and can be seen regularly performing around campus and around Chicago.

pH Productions is now in its 5th season of highly-interactive improv comedy. pH's Mainstage shows can be seen every Friday & Saturday night at Stage Left Theatre.
